

Cleo Coyle's Easy Double-Chocolate Brownie Muffins

Text & photos (c) by Alice Alfonsi, who writes the Coffeehouse Mysteries as Cleo Coyle with her husband, Marc Cerasini

Sometimes we need a little chocolate therapy. For an easy-to-make chocolate escape, I recommend these lusciously satisfying Double-Chocolate Brownie Muffins. These babies are quick to make (and especially easy for non-bakers). They're delicious paired with coffee, which makes them a great afternoon pick-me-up or evening treat. I call it a "pantry recipe," because it uses a few simple ingredients that many of us often have in our kitchens. The mashed banana gives nice weight to the muffin and adds a bit of nutrition along with a subtle but lovely flavor. Combined with the (optional) peanuts (good protein) and melted chocolate chips (for the soul), this muffin's flavor isn't far from a chocolate-syrup drizzled banana split. Seriously, the hard part for me and my husband (after pouring our coffee) is eating only one. May you eat (and read) with joy!

- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract (do not skip!)
- 4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) butter, melted and cooled
- 2 ripe bananas, mashed well with fork (until they resemble applesauce)

Directions: Place all ingredients into a large mixing bowl. (Be sure the melted butter is not too hot. You don't want to cook the eggs.) Mix by hand until well blended, but do not over mix.

Line 12 muffin cups with paper liners and divide batter among them (filling each cup about 2/3rds full, see my photo). OR grease the cups and go naked.

Bake at 350° Fahrenheit for about 20 minutes.

(Do not over-bake.) Remove from oven and allow muffins to cool a bit before stripping away the paper and noshing. (No kidding...) If you try to remove the paper liner while the muffin is still hot, you'll have sticking problems. Simply allow the muffin to cool, and the paper should easily peel away. Then I certainly hope you will...

Eat (and read) with joy!
