

Cleo Coyle's Honey Apple Cake

(Dairy-free: no milk, no butter)

Text and photos (c) by Alice Alfonsi who writes The Coffeehouse Mysteries as Cleo Coyle with her husband, Marc Cerasini.

This is a wonderful cake, tender and delectably delicious. I use raw honey for the best flavor. As for the type of apple, I like Golden Delicious for this cake—not to be confused with Red Delicious. Golden Delicious apples are slightly sweet and buttery and a very nice apple for baking.

May you eat (and read) with joy! ~ Cleo Coyle, author of The Coffeehouse Mysteries

Ingredients:

- 3 medium apples, peeled (I use Golden Delicious, see my note above on apple types for baking)
- 1/4 cup honey (for outstanding flavor, I use raw honey)
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger (do not use fresh)
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 4 large eggs
- 3/4 cup light brown sugar
- 1/2 cup granulated white sugar
- 3/4 cup canola or vegetable oil
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt (or 1/4 teaspoon table salt)
- 1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1-1/2 cups all-purpose flour

Pan prep: Fit a 9 x 13-inch pan with a parchment paper sling (see photo at right). The excess paper hanging over the sides will act as handles, allowing you to lift the cooled cake onto a serving platter. (Tip: I like to spray the pan lightly with non-stick spray to help the paper to stick better to the pan's bottom and sides.) Also coat the sides without paper with non-stick spray.

Step 1 – Make the honey-apple topping:

Shred the peeled apples with a box grater or food processor. Put the shredded apples in a saucepan and toss well with honey, cinnamon, ginger, and nutmeg. Cook and gently stir over medium-high heat for 10 to 15 minutes. This pre-cooking will evaporate the excess moisture from the apples and soften and caramelize them for great flavor.

When finished cooking, most (but not all) of the visible liquid should be gone from the pan; remove from heat and allow to cool while you create the cake batter.

Step 2 – Mix batter with one-bowl mixing method:

Whisk eggs until slightly frothy. Add brown and white sugars, oil, salt, and baking powder, and whisk until well blended. Sift the flour into the bowl. Stir only enough until a smooth batter forms; do not over-mix or you will develop the gluten in the flour and your cake will be tough instead of tender. Batter will be loose.

Step 3 – Pour batter into pan and top with apples and honey: Pour the loose batter into the prepared pan and gently tilt the pan back and forth until the batter coats the bottom of the pan in an even layer. Using a fork, gently begin to pick up small amounts of the shredded, cooked apple topping (from Step 1), leaving behind any visible liquid.

Drop the apples in small mounds across the batter in the pan (as shown in my photo below).

Use the fork's prongs to separate these mounds and continue to spread the topping into an even layer across the batter.

Drizzle the final 1 to 2 tablespoons of honey over the cake top. (If using raw honey, warm it a bit for drizzling consistency.)

Step 4 – Bake: Bake in a well-pre-heated oven at 350° F for 30 to 40 minutes. The time will depend on your oven. Cake is done when the batter has turned golden brown and a toothpick inserted into the cake comes out free of batter. (Tip: The cake center will take a bit longer to cook than the outside edges, but take care that your cake’s edges do not over-cook.)

Serve: Cool the cake in the pan. Gently run a knife between the cake and the pan sides that are not covered with parchment paper (to loosen the cake and prevent sticking); and then use the parchment paper “handles” to gently lift the cake onto a cutting board or serving platter and slice into squares. This cake is delicious on its own or with dairy-free whipped cream (made from coconut milk).
